

June Monsoon Diaries

Dear Friends and Well-Wishers,

As I reflect on the last few weeks, I feel an overwhelming sense of gratitude and hope. Through every project, every handshake, every signature on a renewed partnership we are reminded that when people come together with compassion and commitment, change takes root in the most meaningful ways.

At Mukul Madhav Foundation, each initiative is more than just numbers or reports it is a story of lives touched, resilience nurtured, and communities strengthened. From empowering widowed farmers in Osmanabad with quality seeds and training, to supporting young minds in Meghalaya through holistic learning programs your trust has helped us bridge gaps and build futures.

In Gadchiroli, together with our partners, we continue to challenge age-old practices by providing safe, dignified spaces for tribal women through Period Positive Holiday Homes and toilets that contribute to Open Defecation Free villages. In Uttarakhand and Gujarat, we are walking alongside women entrepreneurs helping them build skills, set up enterprises, and unlock their potential as leaders and change-makers in their communities.

Our work with children whether it is ensuring life-saving insulin for those with Type 1 Diabetes, expanding rehabilitation for children with cerebral palsy, or creating safe spaces at railway stations, reminds us why protecting and nurturing childhood is at the heart of everything we do.

Each health camp, every training session, every seed sown, every child given a chance, these are testaments to what we can accomplish when our collective vision is guided by empathy, responsibility, and shared purpose. Most importantly, to the resilient communities and individuals who allow us to walk beside them thank you for your trust and courage. You inspire us to keep going, keep learning, and keep serving.

As we look ahead, I invite each one of you, old friends and new, to stay connected with us on this journey. May we continue to grow this circle of care and build a world where every person can live with dignity, hope, and opportunity.

With heartfelt gratitude,
Warm regards,
Ritu Prakash Chhabria

Empowering Widowed Women Farmers Through Sustainable Agriculture, 16th June 2025.

The Mukul Madhav Foundation (MMF) remains committed to empowering widowed women farmers by providing essential farming resources, expert knowledge, and practical techniques to help reduce soil erosion, increase agricultural productivity, and minimise soil and water pollution.

Key Initiatives:

- Support for Women Farmers with Soya and Tur Seeds: Recognising that quality seeds are the backbone of agriculture, MMF, in collaboration with Mahabeej and FICCI Flo, launched this initiative in 2019, supporting 424 widowed women in Osmanabad with 30 kg of soybean and 2 kg of Tuvar seeds per acre at subsidised rates.
- The project has continued year after year, creating sustainable impact. In 2023, 348 women who had gained independence graduated from the programme, making way for a new group of 348 women to benefit from the support.

Outcomes:

- Widowed women farmers have gained financial independence and adopted improved, sustainable farming practices.
- Positive feedback from government officials and seed dealers has strengthened local support and recognition for the initiative.
- Many women have cleared old debts, funded their children's education, and now save for future farm-related expenses.
- The success stories of these resilient farmers have inspired MMF to extend this support to more women in need each year.

This year, 39 women who are now self-sufficient requested that MMF support other widowed women instead. On 17th June 2025, MMF proudly added 39 new widows to the programme, continuing support for a total of 424 widowed farmers with high-quality seeds.
